Gentlemen -

I have had some Silver coins which I suppose to be tetradrachms of the time of Alexander the Great. On one side is the head of Heracles in a lion's skin and on the obverse side Zeus is pictured holding an eagle - I have given away all but one of these coins and have never doubted their authenticity, but it has been questioned lately and I would like to take this con to your office and have it examined.

As this is the vacation Season, I am not sure whether the office is open or if open what the hours are. Will you have the great kindness to let me know -

Very sincerely yours.

Dear Sir:

Responding to your letter of August 14th, if you will send or bring the tetradrachm of which you write, we shall be very glad to aid you if possible.

You could save yourself a trip by sending the coin by registered mail; and as we are so far up-town, that is not a minor consideration in this weather.

Very truly yours,

Secretary
